

Coastal Defense Artillery Shipped Away

Canada's biggest coast guns, installed at Albert Head in 1938 at a reputed cost of $1,000,000 each, are being dismantled and shipped to Europe. Military men consider the huge pieces outmoded by naval and air defenses.

$3,000,000 Installations

Albert Head Guns To Go; Promised to NATO Plan

Air Force, Navy Now Sole Defense

Big-voiced coast defense guns at Albert Head are being dismantled for shipment to Europe under the mutual aid program of NATO. The Daily Colonist learned last night.

Although no official figures are available, conservative estimates place costs of the three installations at more than $1,000,000 each when they were placed at Albert Head in 1938.

"The guns are no longer required for coastal defense," an army spokesman said.

In modern warfare the "role formerly filled by these weapons has been taken over by the Royal Canadian Navy and Royal Canadian Air Force."

The 9.2 guns which have a window-breaking and plaster-cracking record in this area are now surplus to requirements for Canada's coast defense.

Regular army gunners are doing the dismantling job and are preparing them for shipment. The guns have never been used in anger, but their shattering thunder has resounded over Victoria and Esquimalt since their installation.

Two of them were first installed at Signal Hill on Esquimalt in the early 1900's.

OPEN WINDOWS

Before firing from that position street cars had to be warned to stop and all householders to open their windows and doors.

Even at that many windows were reported broken every time the big guns were fired and there are still houses in Esquimalt where householders point to cracked plaster caused by the 9.2's.

In 1938, just before the Second World War the guns were moved from Esquimalt to Albert Head where an intricate system of army installations and tunnels connected each gun.

Only a few months later a third gun was added.

DEBUT IN '39

First to fire the guns at Albert Head was the old 56 Heavy Battery RCA (Reserve), which, under direction of Major S. R. Bowden, fired nine rounds from each gun during their summer camp in June, 1939.

The guns were mounted to shoot the whole circle of 360 degrees and were equipped with automatic sights for night firing.

A six-pounder was added on top of each gun, which was used in conjunction with range and setting of guns to train gunners and battery commanders.

By using the six-pounders the defense department cut down training expenses both in ammunition and in wear and tear on the 9.2's.

Weight of each 9.2 projectile is 385 pounds and a full charge amounts to 120 pounds of cordite.

They were the heaviest guns ever installed on Canada's Pacific Coast and are classed as counter-bombardment weapons with a probable range of over 20 miles.

Prisoner for Two Years

Chinese Will Free Canadian Air Ace

OTTAWA (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. MacKenzie, DFC, 34-year-old Canadian fighter ace, will be released December 5 at the Hong Kong border by the Chinese Communists after exactly two years as a prisoner of war.

MacKenzie, credited with destroying 8½ enemy planes during the Second World War, was one of the 21 RCAF fighter pilots who served with the U.S. Air Force in the Korean war. He was shot down December 5, 1952, about six weeks after his arrival in the Korean theatre.

"He'll be home for Christmas! He'll be home for Christmas!" Mrs. Joyce MacKenzie excitedly hailed the forthcoming return of her air force husband.

"The children are so happy and me—well, I expected it but I didn't have any idea when it would happen," she said at Strathmore, Que.

They have four children—Bobby, 10; Pauline, 9; Ronnie, 7; and Jo Ann, 3.

"All the children remember their daddy except little Jo, who wasn't quite a year old when he left for Korea," said Mrs. MacKenzie.

Since he was captured she has received some 35 letters from him and she said all spoke highly of his treatment at the hands of the Chinese.

Collars Opposition Member

Minister Not Drunk —But Fighting Mad

QUEBEC (CP)—Social Welfare Minister Sauve and a member of the Liberal opposition almost came to grips on the floor of the legislative assembly Tuesday night in a rapid-fire exchange as the assembly adjourned for the night.

Mr. Sauve was across the floor in a flash as the sitting adjourned and placed his hands on the jacket collar of Yvon Dupuis (L. Montreal Ste. Marie).

A score of government and opposition members surrounded the two as Mr. Sauve was heard from the press gallery to say: "Repeat that, repeat that."

"I swear I never said anything of the sort," the 28-year-old member said.

Cabinet ministers later told newspapermen Mr. Sauve understood Mr. Dupuis had said "the minister is drunk."

The incident was closed when Mr. Dupuis repeated he had not said what the minister had understood.

Joe Finally 'Kicks Habit'

Narcotics Anonymous Ends Slavery to Dope

VANCOUVER (CP)—Narcotics Anonymous now is becoming an effective force against drug addiction in this city that harbors more addicts than any other in the province.

In proof, the story of a narcotics addict named Joe was unfolded here Tuesday.

Joe, who describes himself as a "cook by trade, thief by profession, and a drug addict," was cured by the new-born organization.

His story was told in a 40-minute tape-recorded interview which will be heard in a city church Sunday.

It comes at a time when police are stepping up their efforts to stamp out narcotics trafficking, blamed for a current serious crime wave, and other groups are seeking a more-lasting solution to the problem.

"I got out of high school ... I drank. I was unstable, I guess. There was no steady work ... I substituted drugs for alcohol for the kicks I got in marijuana."

"It wasn't long before I graduated to opium, morphine and then heroin."

Joe said he was put on the track of Narcotics Anonymous by a local minister.

"I'll have been off for two years in January and I know I'm not going back. I married and my wife is an ex-addict. I even got around to packing a lunch bucket."

"I like this 10-hour week. You work a lot longer hours stealing and boosting."

Tragedy Hits Adventurers; Eekie Killed

This is the 14th in a series of articles by William Willis, 61-year-old New Yorker who sailed alone on a raft 6,400 miles across the Pacific from Peru to Pago Pago. Today, Eekie is dead.

BY WILLIAM WILLIS

(Copyright, 1954, By William Willis. World Rights Reserved)

NEW YORK (NANA)—Long sea voyages, I've heard it said, generally include a tragedy. On my raft, my cat and I seemed most vulnerable to wind and wave. But as it happened, Eekie, my parrot, was disaster's own choice, even though he spent almost every minute in a sound cage, solidly lashed.

About four weeks before leaving Callao on the 6,400-mile voyage across a lonely ocean to Pago Pago, I decided to take two pets along—the cat for companionship, and the parrot for amusement. Eekie, green with a yellow breast, a red strip across the tail and some wing feathers tipped with blue, traced his background to the Peruvian jungle and was given me by the company which, supplied my fresh water. Meekie, a six-month-old, thoroughly black cat, had a nautical background. She had lived in the clubhouse of the Peruvian navy's submarine division. It was in these quarters that Captain Saldias, son of Peru's naval minister, found her and secured her for me.

Never Got Along

The pets did a great deal to lighten the solitude of my 115 days on the Pacific. But they did not entertain each other—to the contrary. Many times Eekie squawked warnings that Meekie was reaching a paw into his cage.

It was October 12 and, since passing the Marquesas Islands many hundreds of miles back, I had held a southwesterly course, heading for the Samoan Islands. I counted the American Samoas a likely landing place—but I had to have the right wind and water conditions before I could bring my raft to shore without risking a wreck on a reef.

On that October day I passed three of the Samoans, the Manua Group—Tau, Olosega and Ofu—but veered away from them when I saw that a landing would be hazardous. Finding a place to bring the Seven Little Sisters to shore—that was my latest problem, along with the continual shortage of fish that had troubled me almost constantly since the Marquesas.

With the prevailing wind from the southeast, I had to find a clear landing area on an island's north side, or risk being driven on the coral. With so many miles behind me, and so many storms and waves, I was intent that the Seven Little Sisters, my balsalog raft, should not wind up on a reef.

Across all those miles, Meekie had been a perfect companion. Affectionate in a quiet way, and very independent, she never complained even when we had no fish for days. At all times the cat kept her dignity and pride. When only stale fish was available, she turned up her nose for two and even three days before nibbling a few bites in order to survive. Her supply of evaporated milk was scanty and she grew thin. But whenever I sat down by the wheel in the evening, Meekie insisted on lying on a sweater by my side. When I sang my songs, she touched my face with a paw, just once, and then lay down to sleep.

She slept most of the time, but the sight of me breaking out a fishing line would quickly bring her to her feet.

Churchill Discloses War-End Drama

Surrendered German Arms Held Ready To Fight Reds

WOODFORD, England (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill said here that even before the end of the Second World War he had planned to use German troops to fight Russia, if necessary.

He said that while German soldiers were surrendering by the thousands, he ordered Field Marshal Montgomery, then British commander in Europe, to collect and stack German arms "so that they could easily be issued again to the German soldiers, whom we should have to work with if the Soviet advance continued."

Sir Winston said he believed he was the first prominent person "publicly to state the fact that we must have Germany on our side against Russian Communist aggression."

He said Russia's switch from ally to enemy within 10 years

"was brought about only by the policy of Soviet Russia itself, and above all Stalin, the dictator."

Speaking in his parliamentary constituency here, the prime minister said that with Labor support of the London and Paris agreements more than three-quarters of the British people have declared themselves for rearming Germany and including her in the ranks of NATO.

He said it was still his purpose to work toward closer contact with Russia and to determine if there was any important change of mood or outlook under the new Soviet leadership.

Power Export Upheld

VANCOUVER (CP)—Public Works Minister Gagliardi speaking at the annual dinner of the Automotive Retailers' Association, said industry is not developing in the Arrow Lakes region of B.C., so "we must export and sell our power" in that area.

"We have too much power," he said, "so we must export it and sell it."

"Industry cannot come in here and develop it," Mr. Gagliardi said. B.C.'s hydro-electric potential is 12,000,000 horsepower, of which about 2,000,000 is actually operating.

Of proposals to sell Arrow Lakes power, he said "we are not always right and anything we do must be able to stand the light of day."

"Power development today," the minister said, "is essential. It cannot be postponed. It must be done immediately if we are to benefit fully."

Bonner Cites Debt Cut

EDMONTON (CP)—B.C.'s Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Tuesday night his province's Social Credit government has reduced debt by $50,000,000 in the two years in which it has been in power.

Mr. Bonner said at a public meeting held in connection with the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention that the preceding coalition government, dominated by Liberals, had made large increases in the province's debt.

From 1947 to 1952 the debt had increased from $122,000,000 to $191,000,000, the attorney-general added, and the Liberal finance minister proposed to borrow another $29,000,000.

The B.C. Social Credit government had launched and worked on the greatest road work program in that province's history and had financed it all from income without borrowing a "nickel," he said.

Queen Mother Arrives Home

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuters)—The Queen Mother arrived home from New York Tuesday night on the liner Queen Mary, as officials prepared to roll out the red carpet when she steps ashore in the morning.

During the crossing the Queen was a "great hit" with the children, acting Capt. C. L. Thompson said. She delighted the kiddies when she visited the ship's nursery and helped one child finish off a drawing of a house, he said.

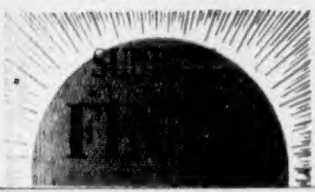

Charged with Torturing Her Nuns

'Lady Rasputin' Dies in Jail

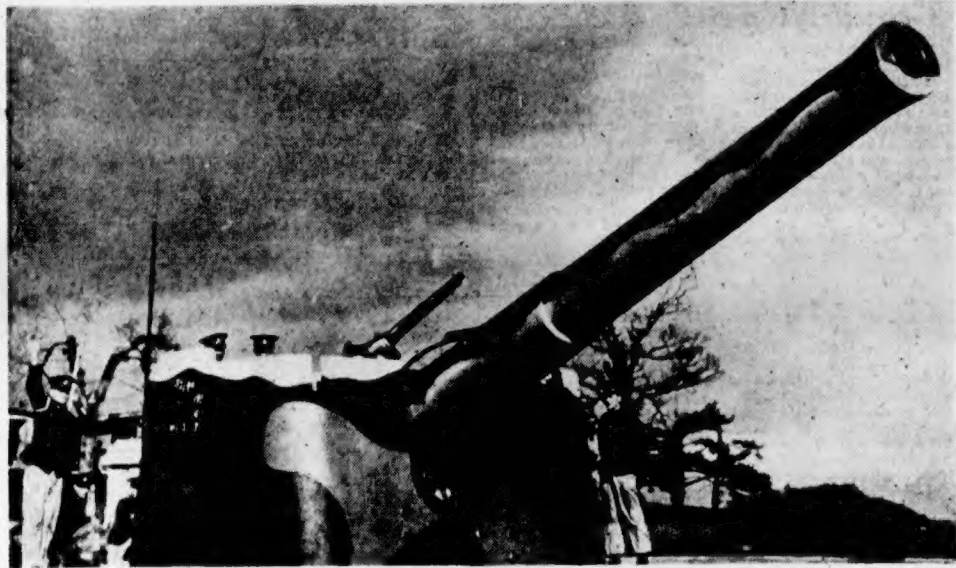

ATHENS (Reuters)—Mother Mariam, former superior of Keratea Calendrist convent who was nicknamed "the woman Rasputin" after being charged with torturing her nuns, died in prison hospital Tuesday. She was 71. She had been sentenced to prison on several charges of embezzling the dowries of Greek women who had joined her convent. The superior, who was a leader of the now outlawed Calendrist sect, was serving a 10-year sentence. The prosecution said she had amassed her wealth by telling her nuns to will their property to her as the only way they could get into Heaven. Mother

Mariam was said to have hastened the death of her nuns by imposing rigorous fasts and penances. The Calendrist, who retain the old Julian calendar, broke away from the Greek Orthodox church in 1923 when the church adopted the Gregorian calendar observed by the rest of the Christian world. They were outlawed in 1951.

Reds Join West Favoring A-Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Russia Tuesday joined the rest of the United Nations in unanimously approving President Eisenhower's plan for peaceful development of atomic energy.

The 60-member political committee adopted a resolution endorsing negotiations for an international atomic energy agency to operate the plan, and for an international conference of atomic scientists to be held next summer.

It was the second time in three weeks that the West and Russia have agreed on a major subject. On November 4, the General Assembly unanimously instructed the UN disarmament commission to resume talks toward limitation of armaments and prohibition of nuclear weapons.

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, who acted as spokesman for the seven powers sponsoring the resolution in private conciliatory talks with the Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky, hailed Tuesday's unanimous action as a "historic moment."

Midnight Ride of Sailor Brings $250 Fine

A midnight chase through Beacon Hill Park at 40 mph early yesterday morning resulted in the arrest of Fred J. Mitchell of HMCS Naden.

He was fined $250, or 12 days, when he appeared before Magistrate H. C. Hall in police court later in the day and pleaded guilty to an impaired driving charge.

A police officer told the court he followed Mitchell down Cook Street at a high speed and into the park. The accused was clocked through one of the lanes at 40 mph.

After he was stopped by police the accused admitted having drunk half-a-bottle of liquor. He was unsteady on his feet when he got out of his car, court was told.

Magistrate Hall said he would recommend suspension of Mitchell's license.

D'Arcy Smith of Port Alberni was fined $50 and prohibited from driving for three months after he pleaded guilty on a dangerous driving count.

The accused suffered mouth cuts after his car collided with a parked vehicle on Gorge Road about 12:45 a.m. yesterday. Police reported the car he struck was pushed forward 59 feet by the impact.

Smith's car suffered $700 damage, and it will cost $600 to repair the parked vehicle.

The accused told Magistrate Hall he did what he could to avoid an accident. Smith claimed the car he struck may have been moving at the time of collision.

Magistrate Hall was assured by police that the car which belongs to a B.C. Electric Company employee, was properly parked.

"Thanks very much, that's all I've been waiting for," said Robert Watson, 47, no fixed address, after Magistrate Hall sentenced him to six months for shoplifting.

Watson, who was released from prison November 1, after serving five years for break and enter, said the sentence would mean his release in the springtime when he could find work.

"Your record doesn't indicate that," added the magistrate. Watson has a record dating back to 1919, and has been in jail continually since 1946.

Worn by Royalty

Shorter Length Season's Queen

LONDON (CP)—London's store windows predict the coming party months and jewel-bright gowns suggest festive occasions ahead.

Rich reds, deep golds, russets and winter greens catch the eyes of home-going crowds, and queen of season again is the short evening dress.

The Queen, Princess Margaret, the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra now wear short evening gowns for all but the most formal occasions. Each new season London's best-known couturiers and most of the manufacturers concentrate more and more on that item of fashion.

In most of the fall fashion shows short evening dresses outnumbered long ones by at least two to one. More than one designer showed only one or two ground-length gowns.

The short dress has the most intricate embroidery, the newest neckline and the greatest number of skirt layers.

Working girls are buying mass-produced ballet-length gowns from less than £5 upwards. There are also many gorgeous frocks available at 10 to 20 guineas.

COLORFUL STYLE

A short evening gown by Matti in tulle and satin brocade with black and gold knots has flared skirt, tight bodice and halter neckline. It is worn with a "garter stole" in iridescent red and blue organza, which gets its name from the huge

Bringing Up Baby

Mint Collected by The Sun (Author of 3)

Am I real? Wee after wee mail comes to ask if I'm a "made-up" person or if I actually exist. If you could see our house at times when our two married children come visiting with their 3 bouncing babies... and our three younger children fill the house with their friends—well, I don't think there'd be much doubt as to how real this mother of five (and oh-so-lively family) is.

Solid five for the crib and bib set—there's Gerber's Cereals when baby is ready for his first solid food. For variety, Gerber's offer five Cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat, and Mixed Cereal. Most take instantly to these mild-tasting, easy-to-digest cereals.

All pre-cooked! Just add milk, formula or other liquids to get the smooth, easy-to-swallow texture babies like. Each one of Gerber's Cereals is enriched with blood-building iron, bone-building calcium and B-vitamins. For mealtime interest and variety, rotate all five cereals.

Back Talk! Here's a turnaround tip from a clever mother that's certainly worth a try: put baby's wrapper on backwards, like a hospital gown. Front flap can be folded out of the way... won't get soaked when baby sleeps on his back.

Early Stages. In the beginning, baby's primary pastimes are sleeping—and eating—a special bill of fare, usually milk or formula. But as the days speed by, your baby will be ready for new additions to his diet.

For example, your doctor may specify vitamin C shortly after birth... to keep baby's gums and body tissues in good condition.

Gerber's Strained Orange Juice, processed just for wee ones, fills baby's new need. For it's made from tree-ripened oranges, specially selected for uniformly high vitamin C content and mild, natural flavor. Gerber's Orange Juice is carefully pasteurized and homogenized... a minimum of peel oil assures easy digestibility. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Around and About

New Square Dance Club Organized at Shawnigan

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Due to the increasing popularity of the private square dances which have been held periodically for about a year, a club has been formed and will be known as Square Dance Club No. 32.

A meeting to organize the club was held in the SLAA Hall Square Dance Club No. 32.

Membership will be temporarily limited to four squares, with Mr. R. Osland as president and Mr. L. Batchelor as secretary-treasurer.

The club hopes in time to build a library of square dance records for the music. Mrs. R. Dougan and Mr. R. Osland with their violins and Mr. O. Nikirk at the piano often fill in when records are missing.

The ladies provide a box luncheon and the conveners, Miss H. Osland and Mr. G. Mitchell served the coffee.

GANGES—At a meeting of the Catholic Women's League, final arrangements were made for the annual five hundred card party and tombola, to be held November 26, in the Mahon Hall. Conveners will be Mrs. A. E. Marcotte, Mrs. C. Marcotte and Mrs. E. Patchett. A gift stall will be held on the same evening.

Following the meeting, tea will be served by Mrs. I. Hughes and Mrs. M. Gyves.

LADYSMITH—The Afternoon Branch of St. John's Anglican Church WA has decided to purchase a stove and hot water heater for the new church hall now under construction.

Mrs. William McLaren, president, and Mrs. William Pettit were appointed to find out costs of the building committee, explained the purpose of the "every member" campaign.

Plans were finalized for the Christmas Bazaar to be held December 2 at 7 p.m. in the Lions' Hall.

St. John's choir will sell preserves and jams; the Evening Branch of the WA, candy stall; the junior auxiliary, novelty stall. There will also be grab boxes, lucky stockings, and sale of costume jewelry made by Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh, former vicar of St. John's, and Mrs. Greenhalgh, of Victoria.

The WA plans home-cooking and sewing tables.

GANGES—At a meeting of the Salt Spring Island Woman's Auxiliary, it was announced that St. Andrews Day will be observed November 30, when Ven. G. H. Holmes will take the service in St. George's Church. It will be followed by the annual meeting of the WA in the parish room.

Oranges Due From Japan On Sunday

First shipment of a traditional Christmas item to Canada will arrive here Sunday when a Japanese freighter docks to unload 18,750 boxes of Mandarin oranges.

The oranges, grown in the Japanese island of Yamanashi, are being shipped to Vancouver by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line.

The oranges are expected to be on the shelves of local grocers by early next week.

Christmas is now months from tomorrow and the post office is already talking about income taxes.

A large announcement yesterday contained the information that forms for 1954 income tax returns will be sent to postmasters across Canada soon.

But to make everyone's Christmas a little more enjoyable, the forms will not be made available to the public until January 3, 1955.

Teamsters' Strike Decision Soon

A decision should be known Friday on whether the Teamsters' Union (AFL-TLC) will strike, after rejecting the operators' proposal of from four to eight cents an hour wage increase.

The union's agent Robert McIlroy said yesterday requirements of the international union should be known by that time.

About 150 employees of six trucking agencies in Victoria sought a 15-cent an hour wage increase and 40-hour week and paid statutory holidays.

Funeral services for Mrs. Beatrice Cameron, patroness of the arts and widow of James Cameron, lawyer, shipbuilder and lumberman, will be held at St. John's Anglican Church at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

Minor injuries were suffered by two persons in a collision about 8:30 a.m. yesterday at Meares and Vancouver. Mrs. May Ray, 52, of 580 Somerset, and John Fielden, 47, of 1011 Victoria, were involved.

Manslaughter Trial Ordered

Arthur Herman Cook of Otter Point was committed yesterday for trial in a higher court on a charge of manslaughter after a preliminary hearing before Magistrate A. L. Thomas in provincial police court.

Cook is charged in the high way death November 6 of Geoffrey F. Ashton of Sooke. Cook was driving a truck while Ashton was in his home and died instantly afterwards.

Cook will be tried at the trial of the Oak Bay Laurier Club in the Old Courthouse at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Officials Voice Mixed Views On New Amalgamation Drive

BY LAWRIE JOSLIN
Colonist City Hall Reporter

Civic and municipal leaders gave a mixed reception yesterday to the renewed proposal of Chamber of Commerce president Stuart Keate for another attempt to bring metropolitan municipalities together under one amalgamated administration.

The chamber president said the report of town planning consultant J. W. Wilson on the orderly development of the capital region shows that the need for amalgamation will become increasingly evident, particularly because the over-all population is expected to double within 25 years.

Among Mayor Frank Mulliner, who said the report was brought to his attention, and the necessity for amalgamation more forcibly to the public's attention.

AS IN TORONTO

He suggested amalgamation might be accomplished here using similar lines to those used in Toronto where metropolitan municipalities retained their own councils but placed the administration of essential services under a metropolitan council.

Reeve Joseph Cassey of Saanich said requests for amalgamation should come from the people and the attempt should be made to force it down their throats.

He said a great many facts should be given the people to enable them to reach a decision. He indicated he would favor a factual study by a competent authority.

Reeve Cassey said he believes residents of outlying municipalities are a bit resentful about the way things have been run in Victoria in past years and consequently, may be doubtful about amalgamation.

NO DESIRE

Reeve Fred Norris of Oak Bay said his municipality has no desire for amalgamation. He said he would like to see the city of Victoria and the surrounding municipalities working out along these lines.

Reeve A. C. Wattle of Esquimalt said the Wilson report has provided a basis for planning for the future. He said the area should wait and see what recommendations are to be made by the regional planners.

The reeve said he would favor amalgamation if it would benefit Esquimalt, but oppose it if it was not going to be beneficial for his municipality.

ESSENTIAL MOVE

Forrest I. Shaw, a member of the chambers civic affairs group who has been a student of amalgamation for many years, said plans for efficient development of the Victoria area cannot be implemented without amalgamation.

Mr. Aubrey Kent, former alderman who is a member of the chambers civic affairs group, also doubted that any over-all development plan could be effected without amalgamation.

J. Donald Smith, also a former alderman and chairman of the civic affairs group, declared the need for amalgamation is "more obvious now, after reading the planner's report."

Eric Charman, chairman of a Junior Chamber of Commerce committee investigating the amalgamation problem, said there should be a survey by a professionally competent authority.

MANY DEALS

Mr. Wilson did not specifically mention amalgamation in his report but he said: "It is not apparent that there are any inter-municipal problems, with the exception of the development of metropolitan parks, which are not being adequately dealt with now by some inter-municipal body or agreement. In fact, the number of such agreements which appear to be working satisfactorily is quite remarkable."

"However such problems are likely to increase in number and complexity as the urban area grows."

Nominated for the 1955 local 1118 president is S. Pernille, succeeding Jack MacKenzie. Mr. MacKenzie is not opposed to continuing as local business agent.

Landing Place in Doubt

Harbor-to-Harbor Air Link With Vancouver Authorized

Pacific Western Airlines has been granted a license by the Air Transport Board in Ottawa to operate a fast seaplane service between Vancouver and Victoria.

But an operating license from the department of transport is still in doubt, IWA vice-president and general manager Russell Baker said last night.

The problem he said is that the company wishes to use the inner harbor time for a takeoff and landing point.

"The company has been advised by the harbormaster, Capt. R. Ronald Newell, that it is not safe to land in the inner harbor," he said.

He said the company had been advised to use a site at View Royal which has in past years been used for a seaplane landing, but that the water was now being used as a boating ground.

"It is no the starting a service if we can't close to town," he said.

He added that his company is prepared to operate as many flights as the traffic warrants.

There are no difficulties in the way of landing in Vancouver harbor.

He defined the inner harbor as bounded by the narrows between Work Point and VMI and Johnson Street Bridge.

Seaward of this area, he said, planes are permitted to land and takeoff in the harbor under regulation.

Dual Jobs Halted

Men who have been holding down two full-time jobs have been "eliminated" by the Victoria local, International Woodworkers' of America (CIO-CCL), officers of the union told The Daily Colonist last night.

Officers told the union membership that steps they had taken had at least partially rectified the problem of the multiple job holder. They appealed to all union men to abide by the principles of trade unionism, "one man one job."

The retiring executive reported a "serious unemployment situation in this area" could be created by a large influx of unemployed persons to B.C.

These might come from other parts of Canada, particularly the eastern section, where thousands are seeking employment with little success, the report said.

Inside Workers Keep Same Deal

Greater harmony between city council and the city's inside employees is seen as certain in 1955.

Members of the City Hall Employees' Union, Local 288 (inside staff), have voted to carry on for another year under their present working agreement with the city.

Discussion marked the early part of this year's annual meeting with the inside staff. The union's executive committee reported a 1954 working agreement changes, and for 1955 the dispute was settled when the union accepted a 2 percent wage increase and a limited number of lesser concessions.

The City Employees' Protective Association, Local 50, also workers, has asked the city to reopen its present wage agreement. But it is understood the union membership has not yet decided what changes it wants.

Might Affect Whole Tourist Trade

Victoria Merchants Fear Higher Tariff on Woolens

BY T. A. MYERS

Any increase in tariffs on British woolens would tend to hurt Victoria's entire tourist trade, city retailers said yesterday.

Operators of woolen shops and clothing stores which cater largely to tourists are keeping a close eye on Ottawa, where the federal government is reportedly considering increasing tariffs to restrain imports of woolens and some other goods from Britain.

Woolen merchants here said any increase would be met by higher retail prices. This, they felt, would not only discourage tourists spending in their own shops but would also have a detrimental effect on other phases of the tourist business.

Victoria is something of a Mecca for American visitors who want to buy quality British garments at bargain prices. In Victoria woolen shops tourists can find a selection of styles and patterns, colors and sizes probably unequalled anywhere in the U.K.

This concentration of fine woolens, some retailers said, is a mainstay of the city's tourist business.

One merchant estimated sales of British fabrics and garments accounts for between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 of the total of $7,000,000 spent annually by American visitors to Victoria.

If tariffs and retail prices were raised, others reasoned, tourists would have less incentive to stop over for a day's shopping after seeing the sights. Other tourist business, as well as the woolen shops, would suffer.

Merchants in this line admit they're doing a good business, but they say their advantage over American importers is not as great as it used to be. The spread between Canadian and American prices of imported woolens has narrowed considerably in recent years, they say.

Planning for the Future

THE Wilson report on town planning in the Greater Victoria region is a comprehensive and challenging document, obviously sincere in intent. If its origination stimulates interest in the number of issues raised that will be all to the good. Prediction, which is what any estimate of the future can only be, is always at some risk; if for no other reason than that the future is seldom what men can or do foresee. Inasmuch as such surveys, however, draw attention to the mistakes of the past and the drifting of the present they serve a useful purpose in themselves.

With some of the predictions in the current report many will agree, but others may be challenged and all are open to debate. It seems probable that the four communities in this area will one day grow into a Greater Victoria civic union, and that increased population will be their lot. It seems probable that existing vehicular traffic will increase, compounding present traffic ills in that regard and no doubt bringing new ones.

That Victoria will cease to count as a shipping centre seems far less likely, in view of its century-old record. It also might be unwise to believe that rural Saanich without water will grow faster than the rural parts of Esquimalt with water to spare. But, leaving details and some ready-made conclusions aside, the planning report is thoroughly welcome for the good that it will do if it makes provincial, civic, industrial and other agencies think in terms of what may with effort be achieved.

Not the least interesting reaction in the public's reception of the document is the firming realization that balkanization of civic effort has borne little but sour fruit here. If ever there was an argument for amalgamation, and long there has been a good one, it shines through the pages of this report from every incident and example mentioned. If from that these four communities, with a complementary and not a conflicting heritage, draw the lessons of co-operation and united endeavor much good may indeed result.

Taxing Canadian Industry

WHILE Finance Minister Harris' recent comments on the severity of Canadian rates of taxes are still fresh in mind, it is interesting and illuminating to note some statistics just published by the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce. They help to confirm a state of affairs which appears to have caused Mr. Harris some astonishment, but of which the Canadian taxpayer has been painfully aware for a long, long time.

"Facts and Figures," an informative booklet put out by the CACC, shows that in 1953 the automobile industry in this country had a payroll totaling $131,300,000. Compared with that, the federal government took out of the industry a total of $162,765,130 in federal sales and excise taxes. The Dominion in other words collected $31,465,130 more than the total paid in wages to all the people who work at the manufacture of cars and trucks. But that was only the beginning. After the federal government had collected its $162,765,130 the provincial governments moved in to mulct the motor vehicle owners of the country another $305,897,069 in motor registration fees and gasoline taxes, to say nothing of provincial sales taxes and individual driving license fees. When all these taxes and fees are added together, it can be seen that the owners and drivers of vehicles paid well over half a billion dollars towards the cost of government, federal and provincial.

Mr. Harris is not responsible for what the provinces do—and anyhow in the case of provincial taxation there is substantial return to those who pay it, in the form of highway construction and upkeep. The government for which he spoke is responsible, however, for a rate of taxation which takes out of an industry more than its total annual wage bill and adds nearly a third to the price buyers would otherwise pay for new vehicles.

In the case of sales and excise taxes on motor vehicles the federal government has the public by the neck, because restrictions on the importation of cars of the same type selling much cheaper in the United States leave the purchaser no choice as to where he will buy. Taxes at the same rate apply, however, to a wide variety of other articles manufactured in Canada, and unquestionably account for the fact that each year hundreds of thousands of Canadian visitors to the United States return home laden with goods totaling many millions of dollars—to the detriment of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers dealing in the same types of merchandise in Canada.

Patronage Follows Service

IT cannot be said that the CPR has made any concession to the able arguments put forward by local Chamber of Commerce delegates on the critical question of the Victoria-Vancouver steamship service. Its senior officials came, complained that they had been misunderstood, and beyond saying that no change from the present schedules was contemplated for this winter and next summer bypassed any discussion of future plans or of improvement of the present situation. The conclusion is invited that they have grown indifferent to the needs of the capital city of the province.

CPR eyes are now focused on Nanaimo; that much is certain from the emphasis placed on the northern city during the discussions. Yet the arguments which apply there have equal bearing here. The more boats that ply between Nanaimo and Vancouver, it was claimed, the more profitable the business. It is analogous therefore that the fewer that run from Victoria to the mainland city the less profitable the returns. That is precisely the point the chamber delegates sought to impress on CPR officials; that the poor service accounts in large part for the reduced volume of traffic.

It is not without significance that the lessening of patronage on the Victoria-Vancouver run has coincided with the steady deterioration of service provided by the CPR. Patronage depends on service. That is why in many cases Victoria people use the Nanaimo boat or take a plane to the mainland; they are forced to do so because of more convenient schedules. Nor does the growth of air traffic explain away all the alleged difficulties that face the CPR. Planes do not carry freight for instance.

No answer was given either to the moral obligation involved, in view of the handsome dividends that have accrued to the railway company from its total investments on this island over the years, a factor that should help to balance red against black in current ledgers. One feels that if the CPR had a mind to change its viewpoint there would be a marked change in the ferry situation between Victoria and Vancouver, to the benefit of the company as well as of its patrons.

Interpreting the News

Sounded Fine—Faded Fast.

FRENCH Premier Mendes-France visited the United States last week under a cloud. By the week end he had begun to shine as few visiting diplomats have in recent years, and then Monday he went into another partial eclipse.

The first big thing he did was to ally

European settlements in May, after WEU had been finally ratified.

Ratification of Western European Union is one thing. Until implemented, it is a theoretical thing. The fact of German rearmament, which cannot even begin until after that, is another thing.

A conference in May would present the Kremlin with the same thing it seeks today—an opportunity to throw new money-wrenches before rearmament is actually a fact.

As for an Eastern European Union providing the same arms limitations as WEU, and its approval by France or any other Western countries, it wouldn't mean a thing except legalization of what already exists, an armed bloc operating under a single and, in this case, centrally located authority.

He said France would be willing to take the lead for a four-power conference on

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and shoes—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE cold war has shifted to the playing fields of the world. Noxious though this may be to the simon pure perhaps it will not harm if it stays there. Goals are easier to spare than lives.

At any rate, a sporting victory is now a matter of national prestige, international competition has all the savor of high international politics.

That is why the CAHA has put $25,000 behind Pentecost V's bid to regain for Canada next spring the international ice hockey championship. Last year's humiliating defeat by a Russian team must be avenged.

Roger Bannister is on record as disturbed by the grim unsmiling attitude of U.S. and Russian athletes at the 1952 Helsinki Olympics. With him running is fun, and the serious will-to-win mein of other athletes almost made him retire. If this was, he said, he wanted none of it. Fortunately for Vancouver he didn't retire.

Like it or not, however, this IS sport on the international level. Whole nations are now roused to patriotic pitch when one country meets another in competition. There is no longer room for the casual we'll-try-to-win-but-it-doesn't-matter-if-we-lose approach.

The London Times agrees with the Bannister thesis. Editorially it deplored the elevation of a game, any game, to the stage where a nation's reputation was at stake. But its football correspondent, describing Wolverhampton Wanderers' recent 4-0 victory over Russia's Spartak team, obviously thinks otherwise. Pride dripped from his pen as he wrote:

"Let everyone mark this example. Nor need this be but one brief candle, nor one gallant set of players strutting and fretting their hour upon the stage. More now can and should be heard from the rest of the company of British players."

And listen to this, in prose that matched the English triumph: "Here at last, on the dark wings of night, England won back her birthright. . . . Here at last was hope for the future—a finger pointing out the right way ahead. For too long in recent years has British football, losing its passion, blind to the artistic expression and joy of physical perfection contained within the game, stumbled blindfold along a road seemingly unknown . . ."

The night, indeed, was a magic carpet to transport us to a new land. It was a night that brought a hush to the Midlands. Wolverhampton itself was a town as deserted as the proverbial village of Goldsmith. An unnumbered army held its breath far from the scene of the battle, huddled around the instruments of science that projected the scene far and wide. But the Molineux ground itself was the heart. Here a tight packed company beat the breath out of itself as the exciting pattern unfolded itself, racing to a dramatic climax that saw the Wolves stride out triumphantly and gloriously.

"All this, supported and bound together with a team spirit that would clearly accept nothing short of victory, produced this heartening movement that should now resound throughout the land. No more must the sword be allowed to grow dust on the wall."

Lackadaisical on the playing field is now demode. And for every good reason. As one sports columnist puts it: "If we are not supremely interested in victory why bother to compete at all?"

Especially when your opponent regards a victory as a national credit rating.

On the Record

Loyalty Is a Two-Way Street

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE State Department's decision not to publish the record leading to the dismissal of John Paton Davies after 23 years of holding high diplomatic posts in the American foreign service leaves one with a queasy feeling, especially as Mr. Davies expressed the wish to have his record opened. The reason given for not so doing is the conventional one of "against the public interest."

Mr. Davies has been exonerated of disloyalty; his dismissal is attributed to "lack of judgment" prejudicial to security.

In complicated international situations no one can validly assess the judgment of his contemporaries. In recent years judgments generally accepted have been repeatedly corrected by hindsight. The only ultimate judge of judgment is unfolding history.

Since we are not permitted to know exactly what Mr. Davies' errors of judgment now appear to have been we cannot assess this verdict.

We assume that in 23 years he made numerous errors of analysis. If he didn't he would be unique in our foreign service and all others: the infallible man.

But if he was conspicuously lacking in knowledge, reason, objectivity, and intelligence the State Department took a long time to notice it. Mr. Davies served under four presidents and seven secretaries of state. If none of these discerned what has now occasioned his dismissal without a pension, how good was their judgment?

One need not be very discerning, however, to judge the effect of this dismissal and others on the foreign service. The service is no bonanza. Gaudier posts go to millionaire campaign contributors, many of them completely unfitted for the job. The hard work is done by the "career" men. These, if they rise to ambassadorial or ministerial rank, usually get "hardship" posts and most of them serve in such posts at one time or another—places where it is difficult to educate their children, or the climate is atrocious for westerners, and social contacts are limited.

As an old foreign correspondent—and only in a literate Europe where it was possible to have contacts with thinking people in all parties and social groups—I know the difficulty of correctly appraising and anticipating developments. If journalists have proved, on the whole, rather oftener right than diplomats it is certainly partly because they are less exposed to pressure at home to report what claqueurs hope to hear; if they had had to key their reports to prejudices in the home office, they would be worthless. But that is what is happening to the foreign service.

There are claqueurs inside the State Department, sometimes susceptible to foreign interests, oftener to organized domestic minorities who also pressure congressmen. Shocking leaks of confidential reports reach these groups who then bring pressures to get rid of those officials whose views do not flutter with the prevailing winds or the interests such groups serve.

Mr. Davies has been under fire from so-called "reactionaries," and been supported by the "liberals." But liberals have been as bad as their opponents. One of our very ablest diplomats who "confidentially" reported during the war that the Soviets would cooperate with the western allies only for the war's duration barely escaped being ousted because of shameless campaigns against him. His judgment was right, but at the wrong time for popularity.

Like everybody else, the diplomat wants to preserve a career in which, often, a lifetime has been invested. So, in the present climate of pressure and intrigue, he tends, even if unconsciously, to tack his reports to the prevailing winds, keeping an eye on pressure groups at home and on loyalty boards. His safest course—and the easiest anyhow—is really to be a "cookbook" reporter. The motto for survival becomes: "Don't stick your neck out." So he becomes worthless as a source of courageous reporting and analysis.

Able men are refusing foreign service posts on the ground that they could not be honest. Others, in the service, live in perpetual discouragement. Others quit the moment an opportunity opens elsewhere. This at a time when America needs as never before conscientious and fearless minds!

Loyalty is a two-way street. A servant who does not have the loyal support of his department cannot be sincerely loyal to that department. Espirit de corps dissolves. Intrigue supplants it. The nation is the victim.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE RESTAURANT was crowded, every table taken. In the lobby, every seat was occupied and 15 or 20 people were standing. At the silk-rope entrance, a line-up of another 20 or 30 had formed.

At one of the first tables inside sat three people, two men and a woman, who had arrived, so the head waitress informed me, at about 12 noon. They had finished their lunch well before 1 o'clock. It was now 1:15.

The lady, reclining easily, was smoking a cigarette and casually toying with a coffee cup. The two guests were engaged in some calculation. One had a sheet of papers in his hands, the other was making notes in a desultory fashion. It was impossible to suppose that they were unaware of the crowds waiting, the pressure on the place.

There is no law regarding how long we may sit at lunch in a restaurant, except the laws of ordinary common sense and decency. In the more popular and crowded restaurants, a table may serve three or four or even more separate parties between 12 noon and 2 o'clock. There are, however, considerable numbers of smaller and less popular restaurants where all the tables are never occupied at one time, and it is not only possible to dawdle over lunch, but entirely permissible, from the point of view of the owner, the other guests, the waiters, everybody. Dawdling gives character to such places.

After a 20-minute wait, we got a table and had a pleasant leisurely lunch, finishing before 2, by which time there was no hurry, as there were plenty of tables then vacant.

The head waitress gave us the news. "They explained, as they paid their check," she said, "that they had a little time to kill. They left the waitress a quarter, for the three of them."

They killed a little time, and injured quite a lot else.

No Curtains for Sport

(From The Times, London)

SPORT, it is becoming increasingly obvious, knows no frontiers. It skips lightly over the barriers of language and emerges surprisingly unscathed from the clutches of temperament. Nations will not always work together, but nothing much less than open warfare will stop them playing together.

The football match between Arsenal and Spartak is the latest example, but a look at the sports page of any French newspaper these days will provide plenty of others. Another Russian team, Dynamo-Moscow, has defeated Reims, Racing before 40,000 onlookers. More surprising was it to find at Lyons a British team facing Australians, not at cricket, but the Rugby League world cup, a form of exercise neatly described by the French as Jeu a trixze. Meanwhile their own 13 scored something of a triumph by defeating the powerful New Zealanders, and in fact only failed to lift the cup itself by losing, narrowly, to Britain on Saturday.

So it goes on. In Rio de Janeiro Frenchman again, this time unopposed by basket, after losing to Israel, "tore" a victory from Canada and finished sixth in the world basketball championship. After this, to read of an international cycling contest in Lombardy and of a meeting between British golfers and those of five Continental countries in Paris next weekend hardly occasions surprise.

We look next for the news that Ireland has taken up pelota or that real tennis is sweeping Madagascar. Examples such as these could be taken almost daily from the newspapers. World championships are two a penny and extend to even the mildest games. The stadiums are fuller, the rivalry is keener, and, for all the high-sounding nonsense and politically tinged solemnities attached to some of these occasions, good will seeps through.

The convict was brought before the warden, accused of beating up a cellmate.

"I can't understand it," said the warden. "You and Jenks have been cellmates and good friends for three years. Why did you suddenly turn on him?"

The convict hung his head.

"Well, warden," he replied, "he tore a leaf off the calendar—and it was my turn."

Red China Accused Of 'Trumping Up' Charges Against 13

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States strongly protested Tuesday night Communist China's condemnation of 13 Americans to prison terms on what the state department called "trumped-up charges."

"Today is the first word we have had that they are being held by the Chinese Communists," the statement said. Downey and Fecteau were civilians employed by the army.

The Red Chinese decision was labeled in the state department statement as "further proof of the Chinese Communist regime's disregard for accepted practices of international conduct."

Simultaneously, the defense department issued a statement calling the Chinese charges "utterly false."

The Peiping radio, in an announcing the sentencing, said the Americans were spies. Thirteen Americans were sentenced to serve terms ranging from four years to life.

ONLY CONTACT
The state department acted through Geneva because that is the only official contact the United States has with Peiping. It was set up during the Far East conference at Geneva.

Besides saying the 13 Americans were condemned on trumped-up charges, the department contended the imprisonment of the two civilians among the 13, John Thomas Downey and Richard George Fecteau, was deliberately concealed during the Geneva conference last June.

Head Man Brags Of Observatory

The Dominion Observatory at Little Saanich Mountain is one of the best known in the world, observatory director Dr. R. M. Petrie told a Y.M.C.A. Club audience last night.

He showed slides of the results obtained from the big telescope of the observatory, and explained how the results are obtained.

The distance of stars from earth can be computed by their brightness in comparison with that of the sun.

He spoke on the motion and distribution of stars during his illustrated address. He noted that the observatory telescope mirror weighs three tons.

It was cast in 1914 in Antwerp and shipped here only a few days before the First World War began.

Three prisms in the telescope equipment can be used together for photographs, or only one can be used for special jobs, Dr. Petrie explained.

It has been found, he said, that some stars are 10,000 times as bright as the sun. If the sun was as bright, Dr. Petrie continued, the earth would be vaporized.

Magazine Tells Readers Of Island's Tyee Club

The story of "one of this world's most exclusive fishing clubs"—The Campbell River Tyee Club—is told this week in an American magazine with an international circulation of more than 2,000,000.

An article by James Perkins, accompanied by seven color pictures, describes the "Trophy Hunters of Discovery Passage."

Membership in the Tyee Club, the story explains, is open only to fishermen who have caught tyees "salmon weighing 30 pounds or more" on tackle specified by the club.

The club's roster lists such distinguished members as the king of Siam and Harpo Marx.

Perkins himself joined the club two years ago when he and Corey Ford fished Campbell River waters as part of a coast-to-coast survey of Canadian fishing.

Perkins landed a 39-pound salmon. Ford brought in a 43-pounder.

Universities Lack Mature Christians

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches said Tuesday only 30 per cent of university students have any church connection.

Rev. Canon H. R. Hunt of Toronto, chairman of the council's department of evangelism, said a study made by a secretary of the Student Christian Movement showed only a minority of the 30 per cent could be called mature Christians.

'Worthless Tree' Harvest Gives $1,000,000 Yield
An annual harvest of "worthless" trees is pouring $1,000,000 into the pockets of B.C. farmers, landowners, the provincial government and U.S. business men.

In the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island, the government prohibits the cutting of Christmas trees on all publicly-owned lands.

Some trees are cut in this district, on private lands, but they make up only about 10 per cent of the provincial total.

The Nelson district leads with about 1,000,000 trees a year, and the Kamloops district provides 750,000.

About 90 per cent of the harvest goes to the U.S. market.

In the Nelson district Christmas-tree cutting permits are issued only to bona fide farmers, who must maintain their plots on a sustained-yield basis.

In the Kamloops district permits are auctioned. Most of them go to big U.S. firms which have Christmas tree-holdings in the eastern states as well.

Cutting generally starts soon after the first sharp frost of autumn has set the needles of the trees. Thousands of trees have already been shipped to U.S. centres.

Quebec System of Education Fosters Unity of Canadians, Says Publisher

Instead of taking a flying leap onto hazardous ground, Gerard Filion, Montreal newspaper publisher, told last night how problems of educational minorities are handled in his own province.

Mr. Filion, the young publisher of Le Devoir, would not comment directly on the request of Roman Catholic authorities

English-speaking people have arrived. There are 10 or 15 English-speaking families now.

"Last summer the school board received a delegation of parents requesting an English-speaking class for their children."

"Only six children were involved. We asked if they could find a few more."

"At the next meeting they said they had 12, six of them living outside the school area and not paying taxes."

"In September, we organized a special English-speaking class for the 12 children. Teaching them costs four times as much as educating the French-speaking children."

ALLOWED TO SEPARATE
These English-speaking children are Roman Catholics, Mr. Filion said. If Protestant minorities are involved, they are allowed to separate from the Roman Catholic schools and form their own school boards.

"That is our system," Mr. Filion said, "and I think as good citizens are educated in Quebec as in any other province. In no other province is there such unity of English and French-speaking Canadians."

Ontario's system of separate school boards and classes for French-speaking students is the same for elementary schools as Quebec's, Mr. Filion said.

In Victoria on a Canada-wide speaking tour before Canadian Clubs, Mr. Filion said that despite inequality of school treatment and the continuing struggle between Quebec and Ottawa over taxation rights, Quebec and the rest of Canada had made great strides toward understanding.

Canadians are becoming more tolerant as they grow more Canadian-minded on a broad plane, he said.

Mr. Filion will speak to a luncheon of the Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel at 12:15 p.m. today, and to the Women's Canadian Club at 2:30 p.m. at the same place.

Coastal Defense Artillery Shipped Away

Canada's biggest coast guns, installed at Albert Head in 1938 at a reputed cost of $1,000,000 each, are being dismantled and shipped to Europe. Military men con-

Albert Head Guns To Go; Promised to NATO Plan

Air Force, Navy Now Sole Defense

Big-voiced coast defense guns at Albert Head are being dismantled for shipment to Europe under the mutual aid program of NATO. The Daily Colonist learned last night.

Although no official figures are available, conservative estimates place costs of the three installations at more than $1,000,000 each when they were placed at Albert Head in 1938.

"The guns are no longer required for coastal defense," an army spokesman said.

In modern warfare the "role" formerly filled by these weapons has been taken over by the Royal Canadian Navy and Royal Canadian Air Force. The 9.2 guns which have a window-breaking and plaster-cracking record in this area are now surplus to requirements for Canada's coast defense.

Regular army gunners are doing the dismantling job and are preparing them for shipment. The guns have never been used in anger, but their shattering thunder has resounded over Victoria and Esquimalt since their installation.

Two of them were first installed at Signal Hill on Esquimalt in the early 1900's.

OPEN WINDOWS

Before firing from that position street cars had to be warned to stop and all householders to open their windows and doors.

Even at that many windows were reported broken every time the big guns were fired and there are still houses in Esquimalt where householders point to cracked plaster caused by the 9.2's.

In 1938, just before the Second World War the guns were moved from Esquimalt to Albert Head where an intricate system of army installations and tunnels connected each gun.

Only a few months later a third gun was added.

DEBUT IN '39

First to fire the guns at Albert Head was the old 56 Heavy Battery RCA (Reserve), which, under direction of Major S. R. Bowden, fired nine rounds from each gun during their summer camp in June, 1939.

The guns were mounted to shoot the whole circle of 360 degrees and were equipped with automatic sights for night firing.

A six-pounder was saddled on top of each gun, which was used in conjunction with range and setting of guns to train gunners and battery commanders.

By using the six-pounders the defense department cut down training expenses both in ammunition and in wear and tear on the 9.2's.

Weight of each 9.2 projectile is 385 pounds and a full charge amounts to 120 pounds of cordite.

They were the heaviest guns ever installed on Canada's Pacific Coast and are classed as counter-bombardment weapons with a probable range of over 20 miles.

He'll Be Home for Christmas

Changes wrought by two years in Chinese Communist prison is shown in these two pictures of Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. MacKenzie of Montreal. Prisoner for Two Years

Chinese Will Free Canadian Air Ace

OTTAWA (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. MacKenzie, DFC, 34-year-old Canadian fighter ace, will be released December 5 at the Hong Kong border by the Chinese Communists after exactly two years as a prisoner of war.

MacKenzie, credited with destroying 8½ enemy planes during the Second World War, was one of the 21 RCAF fighter pilots who served with the U.S. Air Force in the Korean war. He was shot down December 5, 1952, about six weeks after his arrival in the Korean theatre.

"He'll be home for Christmas! He'll be home for Christmas!" Mrs. Joyce MacKenzie, excitedly hailed the forthcoming return of her air force husband.

"The children are so happy and me—well, I expected it but I didn't have any idea when it would happen," she said at Strathmore, Que.

They have four children—Bobby, 10; Pauline, 9; Ronnie, 7, and Jo Ann, 3.

"All the children remember their daddy except little Jo, who wasn't quite a year old when he left for Korea," said Mrs. MacKenzie.

Since he was captured she has received some 35 letters from him and she said spoke highly of his treatment at the hands of the Chinese.

Collars Opposition Member

Minister Not Drunk — But Fighting Mad

QUEBEC (CP)—Social Welfare Minister Sauve and a member of the Liberal opposition almost came to grips on the floor of the legislative assembly Tuesday night in a rapid-fire exchange as the assembly adjourned for the night.

Mr. Sauve was across the floor in a flash as the sitting adjourned and placed his hands on the jacket collar of Yvon Dupuis (L. Montreal Ste. Marie).

A score of government and opposition members surrounded the two as Mr. Sauve was heard from the press gallery to say: "Repeat that, repeat that."

"I swear I never said anything of the sort," the 28-year-old member said.

Cabinet ministers later told newspaper men Mr. Sauve understood Mr. Dupuis had said "the minister is drunk."

The incident was closed when Mr. Dupuis repeated he had not said what the minister had understood.

Joe Finally 'Kicks Habit'

Narcotics Anonymous Ends Slavery to Dope

VANCOUVER (CP)—Narcotics Anonymous now is becoming an effective force against drug addiction in this city that harbors more addicts than any other in Canada.

In proof, the story of a narcotics addict named Joe was unfolded here Tuesday.

Joe, who describes himself as a "cook by trade, thief by profession, and a drug addict," was cured by the new-born organization.

His story was told in a 40-minute tape-recorded interview which will be heard in a city church Sunday.

It comes at a time when police are stepping up their efforts to stamp out narcotics trafficking, blamed for a current serious crime wave, and other groups are seeking a more lasting solution to the problem.

Joe said he was put on the track of Narcotics Anonymous by a local minister.

"I've been off for two years in January and I know I'm not going back. I married and my wife is an ex-addict. I even got around to packing a lunch bucket."

Joe said he was an addict for more than 20 years, between prison terms.

Adrift 6,400 Miles

Tragedy Hits Adventurers; Eekie Killed

This is the 14th in a series of articles by William Willis, 61-year-old New Yorker who sailed alone on a raft 6,400 miles across the Pacific from Peru to Pago Pago. Today, Eekie is dead.

NEW YORK (NANA)—Long sea voyages, I've heard it said, generally include a tragedy. On my raft, my cat and I seemed most vulnerable to wind and wave. But as it happened, Eekie, my parrot, was disaster's own choice, even though he spent almost every minute in a sound cage, solidly lashed.

About four weeks before leaving Callao on the 6,400-mile voyage across a lonely ocean to Pago Pago, I decided to take two pets along—the cat for companionship, and the parrot for amusement. Eekie, green with a yellow breast, a red strip across the tail and some wing feathers tipped with blue, traced his background to the Peruvian jungle and was given me by the company which supplied my fresh water. Meekie, a six-month-old, thoroughly black cat, had a nautical background. She had lived in the clubhouse of the Peruvian navy's submarine division. It was in these quarters that Captain Saldias, son of Peru's naval minister, found her and secured her for me.

Never Got Along

The pets did a great deal to lighten the solitude of my 15 days on the Pacific. But they did not entertain each other—the contrary. Many times Eekie squawked warnings that Meekie was reaching a paw into his cage.

It was October 12 and, since passing the Marquesas Islands' many hundreds of miles back, I had held a southwesterly course, heading for the Samoan Islands. I counted the American Samoa a likely landing place—but I had to have the right wind and water conditions before I could bring my raft to shore without risking a wreck on a reef.

On that October day I passed three of the Samoans, the Manua Group—Tau, Olosega and Ofu—but veered away from them when I saw that a landing would be hazardous. Finding a place to bring the Seven Little Sisters to shore—that was my latest problem, along with the continual shortage of fish that had troubled me almost constantly since the Marquesas.

With the prevailing wind from the southeast, I had to find a clear landing area on an island's north side, or risk being driven on the coral. With so many miles behind me, and so many storms and waves, I was intent that the Seven Little Sisters, my balsallog raft, should not wind up on a reef.

Across all those miles, Meekie had been a perfect companion. Affectionate in a quiet way, and very independent, she never complained even when we had no fish for days. At all times the cat kept her dignity and pride. When only stale fish was available, she turned up her nose for two, and even three days before nibbling a few bites in order to survive.

Her supply of evaporated milk was scanty and she grew thin. But whenever I sat down by the wheel in the evening, Meekie insisted on lying on a sweater by my side. When I sang my songs, she touched my face with a paw, just once, and then lay down to sleep.

She slept most of the time, but the sight of me breaking out a fishing line would quickly bring her to her feet.

Churchill Discloses War-End Drama

Surrendered German Arms Held Ready To Fight Reds

WOODFORD, England (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill said here that even before the end of the Second World War he had planned to use German troops to fight Russia, if necessary.

He said that while German soldiers were surrendering by the thousands, he ordered Field Marshal Montgomery, then British commander in Europe, to collect and stack German arms "so that they could easily be issued again to the German soldiers whom we should have to work with if the Soviet advance continued."

Sir Winston said he believed he was the first prominent person "publicly to state the fact that we must have German arms on our side against Russian Communist aggression."

He said Russia's switch from ally to enemy within 10 years

"was brought about only by the policy of Soviet Russia itself, and above all Stalin, the dictator."

Speaking in his parliamentary constituency here, the prime minister said that with Labor support of the London and Paris agreements more than three-quarters of the British people have declared themselves for rearming Germany and including her in the ranks of NATO.

He said it was still his purpose to work toward closer contact with Russia and to determine if there was any important change of mood or outlook under the new Soviet leadership.

Power Export Upheld

VANCOUVER (CP)—Public Works Minister Gagliardi speaking at the annual dinner of the Automotive Retailers' Association, said "industry is not developing in the Arrow Lakes region of B.C. so 'we must export and sell our power' in that area."

"We have too much power," he said, "so we must export it and sell it."

"Industry cannot come in here and develop it," Mr. Gagliardi said. B.C.'s hydroelectric potential is 12,000,000 horsepower, of which about 2,000,000 is actually operating.

Of proposals to sell Arrow Lakes power, he said "we are not always right and anything we do must be able to stand the light of day."

"Power development today," the minister said, "is essential. It cannot be postponed. It must be done immediately if we are to benefit fully."

Bonner Cites Debt Cut

EDMONTON (CP)—B.C.'s Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Tuesday night his province's Social Credit government has reduced debt by $50,000,000 in the two years in which it has been in power.

Mr. Bonner said at a public meeting held in connection with the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention that the preceding coalition government, dominated by Liberals, had made large increases in the province's debt.

From 1947 to 1952 the debt had increased from $122,000,000 to $191,000,000, the attorney-general added, and the Liberal finance minister proposed to borrow another $29,000,000.

The B.C. Social Credit government had launched and worked on the greatest road work program in that province's history and had financed it all from income without borrowing a "nickel," he said.

The resolution now goes to the General Assembly, where unanimous approval is expected shortly.

As approved, the resolution contains compromises made after the private talks with Vishinsky.

Queen Mother Arrives Home

SOUTHAMPTON (Reuters)—The Queen Mother arrived home from New York Tuesday night on the liner Queen Mary.

As officials prepared to roll out the red carpet when she steps ashore in the morning.

During the crossing the Queen was a "great hit" with the children, acting Capt. C. L. Thompson said. She delighted the kiddies when she visited the ship's nursery and helped one child finish off a drawing of a house, he said.

Reds Join West Favoring A-Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Russia Tuesday joined the rest of the United Nations in unanimously approving President Eisenhower's plan for peaceful development of atomic energy.

The 60-member political committee adopted a resolution endorsing negotiations for an international atomic energy agency to operate the plan, and for an international conference of atomic scientists to be held next summer.

It was the second time in three weeks that the West and Russia have agreed on a major subject. On November 4, the General Assembly unanimously instructed the UN disarmament commission to resume talks toward limitation of armaments and prohibition of nuclear weapons.

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, who acted as spokesman for the seven powers sponsoring the resolution in private conciliatory talks with the late Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky, hailed Tuesday's unanimous action as a "historic moment."

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld said that by the action the UN has "embarked upon a course that may well prove epoch-making."

Lodge and his co-sponsors, the delegates of Canada, Britain, Australia, France, South Africa and Belgium—obviously were relieved when Soviet delegate Arkady Sobolev raised his hand along with the others in unanimously approving the resolution as a whole.

Sobolev assented although the committee minutes earlier rejected two Russian attempts to amend the resolution.

The resolution now goes to the General Assembly, where unanimous approval is expected shortly.

In addition, there was enough talk of a recession in the United States to scare off many people planning trips.

Canada's tourist trade grossed a record $307,000,000 in 1953, compared with about $250,000,000 in 1954. The 1954 figures are still incomplete but officials expect them to be down some 10 per cent from 1953.

Officials blame the 1954 decline on factors beyond their control, notably the weather.

Charged with Torturing Her Nuns

'Lady Rasputin' Dies in Jail

Mariam was said to have hastened the death of her nuns by imposing rigorous fasts and penances. The Calendrists, who retain the old Julian calendar, broke away from the Greek Orthodox church in 1923 when the church adopted the Gregorian calendar observed by the rest of the Christian world. They were outlawed in 1951.
